Cenotaph: Setion P Lot 108

Major Ben McMakin (November 26, 1913 - January 18, 1945; Cenotaph: Section P) A Shelbyville native, Benjamin Lee McMakin was a popular member of the 1931 Shelbyville High School football team and president of his class. An honor ROTC graduate from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1935, he was commissioned second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. Six years later, at the outbreak of WW II, he was in the Philippines with the 4th Marine Regiment.

Beth Crumley posted on the Huffington Post in 2006 this account: On 24 December, 1941, Captain Benjamin McMakin called together the Marines of Company F and said, "Gentlemen, it is Christmas Eve. We move all night." The 1st Battalion, 4th Marines suffered its first casualties of the war when two Marines were killed in action, and another three were wounded. Regimental Chaplain Herbert R. Trump, instead of conducting a Christmas Eve service full of hope, presided over the burial service of the dead.

The 2nd Battalion of the 4th Marines moved to the Mariveles to be ferried to Corregidor on December 27, 1941. Despite valiant efforts but with no U. S. or Allied support, the troops on Corregidor, including Captain McMakin, were forced to surrender May 6, 1942. The wounded McMakin marched with his comrades to a Japanese prisoner of war camp in the Philippines. His one communication received by his wife, Mada, in August 1944 only let her know he was a prisoner in the Philippine Military Prison Camp No. 1.

While McMakin and other prisoners were being transported to Japan on the Brazil Maru (one of the ships Allied survivors have since labeled "Japanese Hellships") it was bombed by naval aircraft from the USS Hornett. The Japanese failed to follow international law and properly identify the ship as transporting prisoners of war.

McMakin died January 18, 1945. He was buried at sea. Marker on the cenotaph shows Captain but he was posthumously promoted to Major on March 20, 1946.
